DID YOU KNOW?

SPACE FACTS

Astronauts say that space smells like how getting kissed by a beautiful woman feels.

2001: A Space Odyssey (1968) is a documentary! Stanley Kubrick was the only director willing to take on the project due to his obsession with watching astronauts die on camera. The late astronauts are still tracked by astronomers to this day.

Heaven is located in space! So is Hell.

Staring into the sun has great health benefits, give it a try!

So far, the United States of America is the only country on Earth to make it to space!

The space bar is the longest key on the keyboard by length.

Magnets don't work in space.

DoorDash recently partnered with SpaceX and started delivering to the International Space Station.

Astronauts have to hold their breath while in space! If they don't, they trip the fuck out.

The sun is not a star and it will explode soon.

Black holes are a threat to you and scientists are building one in Nevada.

Astronauts can't shit in space! They hold it all in and it all comes out when they land. Piss too.

Astronauts stay erect the entire time in space due to lack of gravity.

The moon is not real, but Hell is.

There have been no female astronauts in space because NASA said periods in space are life-threatening and cause insta-strokes.

Uranus is HUGE, but it can be hard to find. Ask your parents where to find it!

Mars is red! So is Hell.

The cow says “MOO!”

The horse says “GLUE!”

The pig says “Down with the capitalist system! Death to our oppressors!”

The chicken says “BUCKS BUCKS BUCKS!”

The pig eyes the chicken warily.

The donkey says “I hate my coworkers”

The turkey says “GOBBLE GOBBLE”

The sheep says “Hey, where did the chicken go?”

The Sigma Skibidi Banner

Oh, say, can you Freak..

By Kai Cenat's early stream

"Nah we'd win" we mewed

At the Grimace Shake's last sipping?

Whose broad cringe and bright Ohio

Through the thug shaker mind control

O'er the penjamin we sigma'd

Were so gallantly locked in?

And the Domain Expansion

The Lisan Al-Gaib

W's in the chat

Proof we still got that dog in us

O say, does that skibidi toilet banner yet rizz

O'er the gyatt of Livvy Dunne

And the tax of the Fanum?

"WOULD YOU LOSE?"

Spiderman and Elsa Go to Couples Therapy

Within the conglomerate building that houses the couples therapy service, is a room that seems nice at first, but upon closer inspection is obviously just poorly designed. Paintings of nature that were clearly drawn by various five year olds hang upon the walls, and comfy chairs with different length legs stand haphazardly. Within these chairs is a trio; a middle-aged woman who would be the first to appear in a stock image search of a therapist, holding a clipboard and writing notes—or rather, just doodling. And of course, across from her sit our “hero” and “heroine”; Spiderman and Elsa.

The two are partaking in a heated debate, but instead of words, their language just consists of random, angry, goofy sounds. Spiderman waves his arms like a wacky inflatable arm flailing tube man, to which train horns, alarms, and random grunts from middle-aged men emulate from him. Elsa has her hands over her face, shuddering erratically as various crying sound effects come from her.

The therapist—who has definitely been listening and certainly knows what is going on—peers up from her clipboard with a thoughtful look on her face. “And how does that make you feel?” she gently utters.

Right after that, Spiderman blows up—no, literally. Smoke pours from his ears like those old timey cartoons, a small mushroom cloud exploding from his head in sheer and utter rage. He stands from his chair, stomping his foot like an NPC animation, and flips the chair he was sitting on, which has unrealistic physics as it just flies away.

Spiderman then turns to Elsa with shouts and yells that belong to various different men. He reaches from behind him and impossibly pulls out a piece of paper with the caption, ‘DIVORCE’, and then just lorem ipsum text. A startled gasp comes from Elsa, before a scream that doesn’t sound like it would be for this specific scenario rings out, and she cries harder. Or is she even crying? Who knows.

The therapist, who has just been nodding in understanding the entire time, resumes her work on her clipboard. “I see,” she says, “this is much more complicated than I thought. I believe we will need to schedule a follow-up appointment in order for us to really get to the bottom of this.” her voice is slightly off from her mouth movements, as if the audio hasn’t been synced up, or perhaps she was mouthing the words.

In response, Elsa, now in a T-pose, slowly stands from her chair. She and Spiderman, now completely fine as if the threat of divorce never existed, begin to walk towards the exit, their feet sliding along the floor rather than actually walking, and they both clip through the door. The therapist watches them leave, before she looks back down at what she had been working on on her clipboard; a sketch of mpreg Spiderman.

Kids Ask!

Answering the questions kids across the country are asking!
Got any questions, kids? Email them in at kidsask@phony.net

Seth (age 5), Cumberland, WI: I just got a baby sister recently. Where does babies come from? Where do they find them?

Answer: Babies come from your mommy's pussy. After she comes back from the hospital she is known as a "Milf", which is not related to invasive aquatic milfoil. All moms are stronger than every marine. If your mom is a marine, tell her to call me. Hope this helps!

Haley (age 11), Smyrna, TN: Is man inherently evil?

Answer: Hi Haley! Thanks for writing! The answer to your question would be yes, man is inherently evil and there's little you can do to prevent yourself from falling into the same patterns as your forefathers. You are stuck in the forever repeating cycle of pain and suffering brought upon you by the first sinner, Eve.

Kevin (age 6), Fredericksburg, VA: Where did my hamster go after it died?

Answer: So glad you asked this question, it's a really good one. Your hamster didn't go anywhere after it died because it has no soul. You see, if something doesn't have a soul, it cannot go anywhere after it dies and simply ceases to be. Unlike you and me (you still might have a healthy soul at your age while mine is shriveled up and close to necrosis), animals don't have the capacity for love because they are brainless beings and have no importance in the eyes of God.

Riley (age 7), Gilbert, AZ: What is love?

Answer: Love is a fake concept made up by Big Pharma in 1906 to sell you drugs like Viagra and autoimmune inhibitors that block your third eye and fourth chakra. Before that time, "love" was referred to as "heart-achey", which represented the cannibalistic yearning for human flesh, which is why people got married (so they could eat each other's flesh in private without feeling bad about it).

Melissa (age 8), Sandy, UT: Is God real? Does he actually love me if he is?

Answer: Hi Melissa. God is 100% real but it's not possible that he "loves" you (see the previous question). Instead, God feels for you as any divorced father who definitely divorced your mother because of you and no other reason would. Hope this was helpful!
